One might assume one would think that the son of an NBA star would also excel at basketball. But in the world of professional sports, nothing is guaranteed. Two-time NBA all-star is coming off of seasons where he averaged more than 18.5 points and 12 rebounds, even though playing on a rather mediocre Indiana Pacers roster. He's perhaps one of the most underrated players of the league. And one could argue that his 86-point score in NBA 2K22 may be an understatement for the things he's done so far in his career.

In the absence of any context, looking at Julius Randle's statistics from his regular season could be a sign that his 87-87 record in NBA 2K22 was earned, and it's extremely accurate. His 2021 NBA Playoffs performance, on the contrary, altered the script on just what kind of player Randle is.

It could have been nerves. However, if he's going to be seen by NBA fans who aren't from New York City as one of the most powerful players, then he'll have to perform when the brightest. Fixing that could elevate him to the level of elite.

Despite how well-known Zion Williamson is, making his rating 89 overall this early appears to be a bit outrageous for the people who created NBA 2K22. When the ratings were announced for this year's NBA 2K title, Williamson's was the biggest issue for the critics and fans.
